- NIHR 'Going the Extra Mile' report

In 2015 the NIHR strategic review of public involvement (PI) included the following recommendation:

“Culture: The NIHR should commission the development of a set of values, principles and standards for public involvement. These must be co-produced with the public and other partners. They should be framed in such a way, and with a clear set of self-assessment criteria, so that organisations across the NIHR see their adoption as integral to their continuous improvement in public involvement.”

This recommendation gave rise to a final report that detailed recommendations regards PI in NIHR organisations, such as our own CLAHRC Wessex. Here is the link to the report:
